Learning objectives:
English language instruction for the speciality of Computer Systems and Technologies is aimed at developing students' General English knowledge and skills acquired at secondary school. The focus is on the revision of the main tenses, grammatical and syntactical constructions. Lexical items, expressions and types of sentences characteristic of scientific literature language and style are highlighted. The topics offered are discussed on the basis of specialized texts and exercises. Core general technical terminology is introduced, as well as computer lexis, thus enhancing the main language skills, i.e. reading, speaking, writing and listening for academic and professional purposes. The expected outcomes are connected with improving learners' oral and written communicative skills, encouraging autonomous learning skills and ensuring successful professional development in a multicultural environment.
