Learning objectives:
English language instruction during the first semester is aimed at expanding students' knowledge acquired in secondary school, as well as at developing the main language skills – reading, speaking, writing and listening in order to prepare the learners for the specialized training in ESP (English for Specific Purposes). The detailed revision and comparative analysis of grammar tenses and constructions, recycling and extending lexis, prepare students for the following stages in their English language instruction for professional purposes. General English lexical items and structures which are commonly used in scientific-and-technical literature are highlighted. The emphasis is put on improving students' spoken and written communicative skills, as well as receptive and productive skills.
